THE FAMILY NAME

The surname Ring, like other names derived from familiar objects, is common to most European countries, but the first individual bearing it and coming to the compiler's notice is one Sivart Ring, a Danish pirate, who about the 9th century was raiding Scotland and England. A native of Denmark has told me that Ring is one of the very common surnames in that country, indicating its possible Danish origin.

A FORE-WORD

The Rings of New England, prior to 1800, are practically descendants of three men:- Andrew, who came to Plymouth, Mass. with his widowed mother and sisters about 1629; Robert, who came to Salisbury, Mass. about 1635; John, possibly a relative of Robert, who was married in 1664 at Ipswich, Mass. His kinship is not certainly known.

This record deals only with the descendants of Jere Foster Ring and Phebe Ellis, but includes their direct line of descent from Robert Ring of Salisbury. Data concerning other branches of his family may be found in the more complete Ring Genealogy compiled by Mr Albert S. Merrill, of Auburn, Me., whose mother was Elizabeth Ring, a descendant of Andrew, of Plymouth.

Only by patient research and considerable outlay of time and money on the part of Mr. Merrill was the data covering 1614-1823 secured, and this record made possible. His kindness in permiting its use here is gratefully acknowledged, and cannot be too thankfully remembered by a descendant of Jere Foster Ring.

Through Phebe Ellis, (see Ellis Gen., Society of Mayflower Desc.), her descendants may follow their line backward to Gov. Bradford and others of the Mayflower pilgrims of 1620, she belonging to the seventh generation from them.

In this record the numeral before any name in capitals, indicates the generation of descent from Robert Ring.

GENEALOGICAL RECORD

Of the Descendants of JERE FOSTER RING and PHEBE ELLIS. tracing also his direct line of descent from ROBERT RING of Salisbury

1629-1931

1. ROBERT RING. the immigrant ancestor, was born in England about 1614, came to Salisbury, Mass., where he died in 1690 or 91. Of his wife only her name, Elizabeth, is known. Of seven children four were boys. Robert Ring was first selectman of Salisbury in 1682, and must have been prosperous, his taxes for that year being £46.4.4; only seventeen others exceeding him.

2. JOHN RING. fifth child of Robert, was born Feb. 17, 1662 at Salisbury. Mass., died at Salisbury Sept. 22, 1721; his wife was Priscilla Norton, who was born Oct. 16, 1667 at Salisbury, a daughter of Joseph Norton and Susanna Gatchell, who bore him four or more children. John seems to have been an amorous gentleman, for it is recorded that in 1680 he had a son "out of wedlock" by Martha Lampson. In 1691 he was captured by the Indians, but appears to have escaped, for in 1702 he was a Salisbury soldier.

3. BENJAMIN RING. fourth child of John Ring was born at Salisbury, date unknown, and died after 1745; married 1st (int.) May 20, 1725 at Salisbury, Mass., Dorothy Welsh, who was born at Hampton, N. H., died Nov. 10, 1736 at Salisbury, by whom he had two children; married 2d, Dec. 28, 1738 at Salisbury, Jane Perry, who bore him three children.

4. ISSACHAR RING. the last child of Benjamin Ring was born Dec. 25, 1745 at Salisbury, Mass. married 1st July 14, 1768 at Hawke, (now Danville) N. H., Esther Barnard, who was baptized at Hawke Nov. 12, 1769 and died at Goffstown, leaving three children. mar. 2d, Mar. 23, 1784 at Goffstown, N. H., Dorothy Frazer, of whom, and her children, no further record is known.

The census of 1790 shows that Issachar Ring, of Goffstown, N. H., then had two sons and two daughters. In the revolutionary war he served in Capt. Connell's company in Colonel Daniel Moore's regiment, in the re-inforcement of the Continental army in the state of New York; he moved to Goffstown from Kingston, N. H.

The census of 1850 shows that Philander Ring and his first wife, with his brother Peter, conducted a boarding house in Hallowell, Me. Soon after the death of his wife he visited her married sister Elizabeth, at Wilton, where he met and married his second wife who was cousin to both Elizabeth and her husband, Allen Smith. Mr. Ring made his home in Wilton, taking over the store in the west village and becoming also postmaster. Toward the close of the civil war he disposed of the store and for a year or two covered the northern states east of the Mississippi introducing a patent medicine, of which he was part owner. He soon sold his interest in this business, but later, again acquired its ownership. In the great Boston fire of 1870 he suffered severe loss. A traditional yankee, he was ever ready to buy anything promising a profit. For 50 years he was "on the road," He was a ready public speaker and an engaging conversationalist. He was the first member chosen on the school board under the system adopted in 1886. In religious faith he was a baptist.

Sarah Smith Ring was the youngest child of Jere Ring to live to mature age. Her childhood would seem hardship to young women of to-day, but her experience in life's hard school made her the friend and helper of others in times of sickness and bereavement. She was a lover of flowers and surrounded her home with them. The homes and sick rooms of her friends were brightened by blossoms from "Aunt Sarah's" garden, and the wealth of floral tributes at her burial evidenced the love and esteem in which she was held.

8. Cora Ella Ring is a registered nurse, graduating first from the McLean mental hospital, afterwards completing her training at the Mass. Gen. hospital in Boston. She is unmarried and is still engaged in her profession, residing at Dover.

At about sixteen years of age Isaac Ellis Ring developed a tubercular trouble and was advised to seek a milder climate. Embarking on a small coasting schooner, after a stormy voyage lasting nearly a month, he landed at Wilmington, N. C. Little is known of his family prior to 1859, saving the facts of his marriage to Miss Branton and the the birth of four children, one of whom, Harriet, was with him some years after the second marriage, but all trace of her is now lost. Nearly at the close of the civil war Mr. Ring was forced to enter the southern army and was taken prisoner and confined at Elmira, N. Y. Meantime northern troops had devastated his property, leaving not even food for the family. With three small children, Mrs. Ring went in search of food, and finding a steer that had escaped capture, killed it, and posted a notice to the effect that she had killed the animal for food. and would pay for it if ever able to do so. After the war Mr. Ring settled in Little River, and not long after his death the most of his family moved to Georgia.

ERRORS AND OMISSIONS

It should have been mentioned that Jere Foster Ring was third child of Stephen Barnard Ring.

The first wife of Philander Ring died June 26, 1851, and was Emily, not Eleanor Houghton.

Two children of Philander Ring were omitted. Annie Elizabeth, b. Jan. 26, 1865, d. Apr. 14, 1870, Ruvilla, twin to Florence Aurelia, d. at birth.

Ellis Lyle Ring was of the eighth generation from Robert Ring instead of ninth, and the year of his birth is correctly 1867.

The name of Abbie Luzane Folsom's first child should be Nellie Lemira, not Nellie Luzane.

The surname of the mother of Isaac Ellis Ring's second wife was Sellers, not Rellers.

To the family of Joseph Ellis Ring should be added. Normand Weston, b. Oct. 9, 1931.

Other errors will be found, but mostly so manifestly typographical that they are unlikely to be misleading, and will not be mentioned, and their corrction may be teft to the reader.

IN CONCLUSION

I wish to thank every one who has in any way helped to make possible this somewhat imperfect and incomplete record, the collection of which began less than three yers ago.

Much of the data was obtained through correspondence, and time and money have not been at my disposal wherewith to verify the most of it. I have found inaccuracy in some published records and family bibles not always reliable, yet these, together with errors of my own, will not, I hope impair seriously the value of what is only an unofficial record of one branch of the family tree of which Robert Ring, the Salisbury emigrant was the parent stem in America.

The task has been done entirely by "mine own hand," often too hurriedly, in periods of release from other employment with the added handicap of being no longer young, at least, in body. For these conditions I make no apology, but mention them in extenuation of whatever errors or shortcomings may be apparent. In the main I have "told the tale as 'twas told to me" and I am glad to pass it on to you.

It has been purely a labor of love, intermixed, probably, with a little family pride, and as such it is offered to the family, hoping it may be welcomed, and that it may be productive of greater interest and effort in the preservation of the family history and traditions.

Wilton, N. H., Oct. 16, 1931.

A POSTSCRIPT

Since the first pages of this record were printed the writer had an opportunity to visit Salisbury, Mass., where Robert Ring settled practically 300 years ago. Entering the little village on the road from Amesbury, one sees a large tablet, or sign, bearing the names ot the original settlers of the town, and amongst them is "Robert Ringe". A visit to the cemetery "Laid out in 1639" failed to discover among the crumbling headstones any bearing the family name. We found the offices of the town closed, but were directed to a former town clerk, a well preserved old gentleman over ninety years of age, and from him I learned that Robert Ring had lived on an island at, or near, the mouth of the Merrimack river, which is still known as "Ring's Island. Few, if any, descenddants of the name are now to be found in Salisbury, but in the adjoining town of Amesbury are several families of lineal descent.

Although of little genealogical importance, it is interesting to know that the name Ring was a noteworthy one in Scandanavian legends.

One, perhaps the first of that name, was said to have been the great-grand-son of Loki, one of the lesser gods, whose character and position did not differ greatly from that accorded to Satan in our christian theology; a matter hardly calculated to appeal to family pride. On the other hand, it is told in the "Saga of Frithiof" that Sigurd Ring was, or at least ruled aa, king of Ringric.

It would seem almost certain that the Rings of Great Britain were of Scandanavian origin, and any honor or discredit pertaining to the name or tribe must properly be shared by their descendants in America.

Since binding this brochure attention has been directed to errors not previously noted, viz.

The name of the mother of Olive, wife of Robert George Ring (9) was Martha, not Olive.

The date of the birth of Sarah Smith Ring (7), as first given, was taken from the Ellis Genealogy; in the second instance it is the date given to me by her daughter. Her fifth child, Horace P., was undoubtedly born of the first marriage.

Lucinda Watts, wife of Peter Young Ring (7), was born in 1835, and not in the fifties. Data regarding the daughter is now at hand, as follows:

(8) SYLVIA FRANCES RING. b. Dec. 17, 1861, m. Mar. 2, 1887 at Warren, Me., Chas. B. Libby he b. Feb. 10, 1866, at Warren, son of Benjamin Libby and Mary A. Skinner. res. Warren, Me. Children b. at Warren, Earl B., b. June 22, 1893, d. July 14, 1894.

Lillian H., b. July 24, 1895,
Thelma F., b. Jan. 21, 1898.

Mr. Albert S. Merrill has informed me that he is now certain that his mother, Elizabeth (Ring) Merrill, was a descendant of Robert of Salisbury instead of Andrew of Plymouth, as he at first had been led to suppose. He has traced the line of descent to Capt. Joseph Ring, sixth child of the emigrant Robert. Capt. Ring was burned at the stake by the Indians, at Berwick, Me. about 1704.

All other errors, seeming or real, are left to be corrected by those whom they most concern.
